Grants for Undergraduate Student Projects

The Weatherhead Center offers Harvard College undergraduate organizations and student groups, official and unofficial, financial resources to independently organize projects that address their interests related to international, transnational, global, or comparative national issues and may address contemporary or historical topics, including rigorous policy analysis, as well as the study of specific countries and regions outside the United States. Grants up to $1,000 are available. Funding can be used to support a speaker series; study groups; special seminars with faculty or visiting scholars; conferences with an explicit undergraduate focus; student publications; and other programs related to international affairs that directly benefit Harvard undergraduates. The Weatherhead Center gives priority to projects that are on campus and that engage Harvard students.

APPLICATIONS SHOULD INCLUDE:

- One to two-page description of the group and its mission, and a description of the event or project for which you seek funding, including its theme(s), goals, and intended audience, the event's agenda (a draft is acceptable), including speakers and their titles
- Budget, including other confirmed or potential sources of funding
- Completed application cover sheet (see reverse page)
